Hi Paige:

Tuesday is not good; I'll be on travel.

I understand these concerns are part of our discussions on 23 Jan. I also understand, as we discussed, that as long as Explo is viable and the propellant is being delivered or scheduled for delivery to a buyer, then the USG has to wait and allow Explo to perform. I am aware of the current issues and that the LA State Police are at an impasse with respect to handling or moving the material but we have to, as you so rightly commented to me about the responsibilities of Explo, wait and allow the situation to develop. Explo is still responsible for performance of the propelling charges contract.

I have a meeting this week with Army officials to discuss the concerns. I agree with looking ahead and discussing these at next week's meeting.

Take care,
Larry

Larry,

I would like to set up a call with you (and whomever else you feel should participate) on Tuesday. I'd like to discuss the ongoing operations at EXPLO, current needs, and future plans. If you would like to discuss some of the issues the contracts personnel had for me today, we can address that as well. Considering the storage space at Camp Minden is exhausted and EXPLO may not be able to procure space on their own. I think discussing our contingencies no later than Tuesday, would be wise.

Please let me know of a time that works for you and/or your staff.

Regards,
